WORLD FOOD MOSCOW

Moscow, Russia • September 14-17, 2010

- U.S. exports of intermediate, consumer-oriented, and seafood products to Russia totaled over $1.8 billion in 2008
- Modern retail chains are rapidly expanding to meet increased consumer demand for convenient, healthy and well-packaged new products
- Both restaurants and fast food outlets are growing to meet demand
- Russian processors need food ingredients as they expand production

Known for its quality attendees, last year this trade-only show attracted 53,988 importers, wholesalers, retailers, and processors. World Food Moscow 2009 included 1,100 exhibitors from 55 countries. This show is endorsed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and is a great venue for exporters looking to enter this hot market.
