

EXPO Antad & Alimentaria

Mexico is a growth market with excellent opportunities for U.S. products. Aside from proximity, Mexican consumption patterns are expected to change as more than half of its population is under the age of 35, and 78% of the population lives in urban areas. These demographics coincide with an increase in level of disposable income and consumption of food and beverages. Furthermore, given the integration of both economies, Mexican consumers recognize and associate U.S. brands with high, consistent quality and value, therefore this market has a lot of potential for SUSTA region companies.

Mexico's top trade partner is the United States, which imports 80% of all Mexican exports and provides Mexico with 50% of its total imports. In 2016, the United States' major agricultural exports to Mexico were corn ($2.30 billion), red meats ($2.18 billion), coarse grains ($2.74 billion), dairy products ($2.55 billion), poultry and egg products ($1.14 billion), wheat ($611 million), and fresh fruit and vegetables ($603.5 million). Mexico's proximity has made tourism and restaurants a dynamic sector for U.S. exports. U.S. tourists like to consume products they are accustomed to at home, thus creating opportunities for U.S. producers. Correspondingly, duties have been eliminated on virtually all consumer-oriented food products.

U.S. consumer-ready exports to Mexico have grown in many product categories. This activity focuses on some of these categories, such as processed fruit and vegetables, breakfast cereals and mixes, and condiments, processed meat products, snack items and alcoholic beverages. The interest in healthy options in many categories is also on the rise.
